SHADYNASTY LEAGUE OFFICE
OFFICE OF THE COMMISSIONER • DEPARTMENT OF COMPETITIVE INTEGRITY
Est. 2021 • "Trades will not be vetoed, except in clear cases of collusion."
Shoebeer Enforcement Division

October 21, 2026

VIA SLEEPER DIRECT MESSAGE
Mr. Brett Wilson
Co-Commissioner, SHADYNASTY League Office

RE: RESPONSE TO NOTICE OF VIOLATION AND DEMAND TO CEASE AND DESIST
Matter No. SHADY-2026-001.01 – Fielding of Non-Participating Personnel

Dear Mr. Wilson:

I am in receipt of your October 21, 2026 letter captioned "Notice of Violation and Demand to Cease and Desist." I acknowledge the communication as requested.

This response is submitted in the spirit of the Bylaws and the long-standing traditions of this league.

I. Statement of Position

I do not dispute the factual roster moves listed in Exhibit A. I do dispute the characterization that those moves constitute a violation of the Bylaws or intentional sabotage of the league.

Section 5 (Lineups) requires each owner to "make an honest attempt at starting their most optimal valid lineup" and to start players "reasonably expected to play at least one snap." Section 11 (Tanking) explicitly adopts Potential Points as the mechanism for determining draft order among non-playoff teams precisely so that true team quality, rather than manufactured record, controls the order. The Bylaws do not prohibit roster construction that results in lower Potential Points; they prohibit collusion, cheating, and intentional sabotage.

The players cited are legitimate free-agent acquisitions. Several carry residual dynasty upside or were available at zero or near-zero cost. Placing currently unavailable players on the roster or in the starting lineup does not, by itself, violate the "reasonably expected to play" standard when the alternative is an empty roster slot or a player with even less realistic expectation of production. An empty bench does not create a valid lineup; a roster that reflects available talent and injury reality does.

II. Precedent

This league has previously tolerated, and in some cases openly celebrated, tanking strategies that produced similarly depressed Potential Points without formal sanction. Owners have held injured or low-upside players, declined to chase healthy free agents, and otherwise managed rosters in ways that reduced optimal scoring. Those actions were treated as part of the competitive landscape rather than as integrity violations. Selective enforcement of the same conduct now, after years of precedent, raises fairness concerns under the Owner Conduct & Responsibilities and Anti-competitive Behavior sections.

If the League Office intends to adopt a stricter interpretation of "reasonably expected to play" or to prohibit acquisition of injured players for Potential Points purposes, that interpretation should be applied prospectively and announced to the full league so every owner operates under the same standard.

III. Rejection of Demand and Continuation of Current Plan

I do not agree to the compliance demands set forth in your letter. I will not alter my roster construction or starting lineup practices solely to inflate Potential Points.

Moving forward, I will continue with my current plan of roster management. This includes evaluating free-agent additions—including currently injured or limited players—on the basis of long-term dynasty value and the realities of available talent. I will field lineups that reflect the actual state of my roster rather than artificially inflating Potential Points to satisfy a selective interpretation of the rules.

The Bylaws establish Potential Points as the intentional mechanism for assessing team quality for draft order. Managing a roster in a manner that results in lower Potential Points is not "intentional sabotage"; it is a foreseeable and previously accepted outcome of the system the league chose. I will continue to operate the franchise in accordance with the written Bylaws and established league practice.

I reserve all rights under the Bylaws, including the right to challenge any selective enforcement or inconsistent application of the rules with the full league or Executive Council.

IV. Closing

Tanking by record or by Potential Points is a recognized feature of dynasty leagues and is expressly contemplated by our own rules. The distinction drawn in your letter between "time-honored dynasty tradition" and "putting sentient injury reports in your starting lineup" is noted and rejected as a basis for sanction. I will govern the franchise accordingly.

I look forward to continuing a competitive and entertaining season.

Respectfully,

Joe Morehouse
Owner, Rebuilding Morehouse's (f/k/a Tankin4trinidad)
a/k/a "joebags85"
Co-Commissioner, SHADYNASTY League

cc: The Full League (Sleeper chat)

This letter is a league communication issued in the spirit of the Bylaws' Conduct provision: "Trash talking and shit-posting are actively encouraged."